Again, in both New York City and in New Jersey, the Negro districts went solidly Democratic. The Southerner who does not believe in integration and assimilation faces the cold historic fact that it was his party which brought on all his troubles and that they exploded in his face in Eisenhowers time but that was accidental like Herbert Hoover getting Warren Harding's depression.

The Southerner also faces the very grave prospect that it could happen that in some states all the elected officials will, in the future, be Negroes and that all measures taken to prevent that eventuality will be nullified by the Supreme Court of the United States. At that point, what becomes of the Democratic Party in the South?

For instance, what binds Sen. Eastland of Mississippi to Sen. Douglas of Illinois, or what binds Sen. Humphrey of Minnesota to Sen. Olin Johnston of South Carolina? These are very practical questions bearing on who is to be the Democratic candidate for President in 1960 and whether such a candidate might be elected in spite of the doddering weakness of the Republican Party. The 1960 Democratic Convention may create a new Democratic Party as the 1952 Republican Convention left the Republican Party a sickly instrument. It could be that the time is ripe for a new division of parties, perhaps a Conservative Party and a Labor Party which would be more meaningful than the present arrangement.

But the chestnut tree-the real one, son, not the hoss chestnut nor the fancy latter day Chinese chestnut-may get another lease on life after all in this atomic age. And perhaps with some atomic help.

A generation ago, the European chestnut blight swept across the eastern United States. The chestnut forests of Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and New York were wiped out. Until recently, the only known survivors were in a stubborn grove in the Appalachians, and they showed little promise of really being blight resistant.

Then, however, a 21/2 acre stand of trees was located near a conservation commission fire station in Missouri. Dr. W. Ralph Singleton, experimental farm director for the University of Virginia and Dr. Edward R. Buckner, assistant professor of forestry at the University of Tennessee, found out about these stalwarts and asked Missouri's help.

Roy Degler, senior farm forester of the Missouri Conservation Department, collected some 500 pounds-that amounts to 65,000-of chestnuts and split them between the two university experiment stations. Virginia got 200 pounds, Tennessee 300.

The project now is to plant some of the Missouri chestnuts to learn whether they're blight resistant, and to irradiate othersmostly with cobalt-in an effort to turn out a blight proof tree.

O'Neill Staff Shuffle Holds Familiar Echo

Observers See Signs Of Governor Moving Toward Election Bid

By REED SMITH

COLUMBUS, Ohio (P)-Republican Gov. C. William O'Neill this week completes reorganization of his office staff. The reshuffle pattern has a singularly familiar Statehouse echo.

The last time such a reorganization swept that office, the GOP governor was laying the groundwork for a presidential bid.

Last summer O'Neill shrugged off as groundless reports that his aides took presidential soundings at the National Governors' Conference, an annual event featuring rainbow bridges to the White House.

Recent steps by O'Neill to coordinate administration press and public relations activities, before announcing for re - election, reminded political veterans of similar moves by U.S. Sen. John W. Bricker when he became governor in 1939.

In addition to publicity men in the governor's office and various state departments, highway division engineers' offices had a man for local news contracts.

The governor or top aides in 1943 began holding hush - hush meetings with his publicists in what became known as "Little Cabinet" sessions. They usually tax commissioner.

U.S. Industrial Activity Dip Now Widening

No Great Drop Feared But New Segments of Economy Take Breather

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (A) - Slowly but surely the slight dip in industrial activity which began last spring is widening out today-even as the stock market foretold.

It shows in figures from the steel and oil industries, in textile output cutbacks and weak prices, in factory employment, and even is starting to tinge the white collar worker's outlook.

Consumers are doing their share. They continue to spend as much or more for goods and services. But many manufacturers of civilian goods rather than defense items are finding they must produce fewer units if they are to keep their stocks from rising. Higher prices and more use of services color the consumer spending totals.

The economy is still riding high and no great drop is feared. But every month new segments of the economy enter into the current

Steel production this week is lower than at any time since early August 1956, when it was affected by the summer strike. Even products long in short supply, like structural steel, can now be had quickly from the mills. And steel masters are saying they look for little improvement the rest of this year or early in the next, unless their auto customers order better.

The oil industry is being warned that a rough year may be ahead. Demand still tops last year but not by the margin expected, and production is running ahead of consumption. Gasoline price cuts have been made recently in scattered sections of the nation.

At the American Petroleum Institute meeting in Chicago oilmen are being warned of the price weakness which could spread to crude oil itself unless production up satellite and lines of the added, however, that appro-

They also are being told that weapons as well as sputniks. API of spending in other fields. President Frank Porter says that the Iron Curtain countries have Fall Kills Man, 54 boosted output of oil 40 per cent in two years and that vast untapped resources may lie within their borders.

Troubles of the overcrowded textile industry have brought some new price weakness in some lines. To hold down rising stocks several of the bigger textile firms are planning an eight day shutdown, distributed between the Thanksgiving and Christmas holi-

Food consumption continues to increase. But store customers are becoming increasingly resistant to and restive under advancing

One of the most discussed shortages of recent years is that of skilled technicians and such white collar workers as secretaries. The supply is fairly tight. But here and there in the nation workers are reporting it isn't as easy now as formerly to switch jobs.

Total employment remains near a peak. In October it rose again, but this time chiefly because of an unexpected demand for farm workers. The ranks of factory workers grew slimmer.

U.S. Industrial Activity Dip Now Widening

No Great Drop Feared But New Seaments of Economy Take Breather

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (#) - Slowly but surely the slight dip in industrial activity which began last spring is widening out today-even as the stock market foretold.

It shows in figures from the steel and oil industries, in textile output cutbacks and weak prices, in factory employment, and even is starting to tinge the white collar worker's outlook.

Consumers are doing their share. They continue to spend as much or more for goods and services. But many manufacturers of civilian goods rather than defense items are finding they must produce fewer units if they are to keep their stocks from rising. Higher prices and more use of services color the consumer spending totals.

and no great drop is feared. But every month new segments of the economy enter into the current

Steel production this week is lower than at any time since early August 1956, when it was affected by the summer strike. Even products long in short supply, like structural steel, can now be had quickly from the mills. And steel masters are saying they look for little improvement the rest of this year or early in the next, unless their auto customers order better.

The oil industry is being warned that a rough year may be ahead. Demand still tops last year but not by the margin expected, and production is running ahead of to a Marxist type of government last March 31. have been made recently in scattered sections of the nation.

Troubles of the overcrowded textile industry have brought some new price weakness in some lines. To hold down rising stocks several of the bigger textile firms are planning an eight day shutdown, distributed between the Thanksgiving and Christmas holi-

Food consumption continues to increase. But store customers are becoming increasingly resistant to and restive under advancing

One of the most discussed shortages of recent years is that of skilled technicians and such white collar workers as secretaries. The supply is fairly tight. But here and there in the nation workers are reporting it isn't as easy now as formerly to switch jobs.

Total employment remains near a peak. In October it rose again, but this time chiefly because of an unexpected demand for farm workers. The ranks of factory workers grew slimmer.

It takes POWER to reach the goal

It is predicted Ohio will be the Number One industrial state by 1967.

Ohio's electric companies share this optimism. They'll "run interference" for this "power play" by continuing to provide plenty of low-cost electricity to meet additional requirements. That's very important in expanding industry and increasing jobs in Ohio.

During the last ten years Ohio's electric companies have invested more than one billion dollars in new facilities. They have doubled the total available power. They expect to double it again in the next decade.

No matter how fast Ohio grows, its electric companies must grow even faster to keep our power supply a step ahead. These companies will meet this goal - paying their own way.

It takes POWER to reach the goal

It is predicted Ohio will be the Number One industrial state by 1967.

Ohio's electric companies share this optimism. They'll "run interference" for this "power play" by continuing to provide plenty of low-cost electricity to meet additional requirements. That's very important in expanding industry and increasing jobs in Ohio.

During the last ten years Ohio's electric companies have invested more than one billion dollars in new facilities. They have doubled the total available power. They expect to double it again in the next decade.

No matter how fast Ohio grows, its electric companies must grow even faster to keep our power supply a step ahead. These companies will meet this goal - paying their own way.
